The Recorder is the professional journal of The Ontario Music Educators' Association and is published Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter. It has a current circulation of 1650 copies per issue.

Founded in 1919, the OMEA is the professional organization for school music educators in Ontario who are responsible for developing, implementing and reviewing curriculums.

People who read The Recorder are early childhood, elementary school, secondary school and post-secondary music teachers. They may be generalist classroom teachers as well as music specialists who may teach general music, Kodály, Orff, band, choral, orchestra, keyboard, musical theatre, guitar, vocal jazz, MIDI/music technology, or integrated arts. In addition, some members are private music teachers.

Readership also includes music/arts consultants/coordinators, as well as school and board administrators such as vice principals, principals, superintendents, and directors of education.
